Dear Rahul, Dwight, Samuel and Graci

Thank you for coordinating a visit to Boston's Wind Turbine Test Center. This note confirms a visit 6/14 2-30pm appointment with Rahul Varma. He is the center's executive director as part of the Massachusetts Clean Energy Council. He will provide a brief tour of the facility and be available as a resource for other questions. The address is 60 Exumal Street in Boston, opposite the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Rahul, you are cordially invited on Thursday afternoon to me at your Conuman's centerpart at the event, in the Hynes Convention Center. Please let me know if you'd like more details or coordination.

Sam Labus will be representing the Energy and the Washington Department of Justice, Washington, D.C. and all TechConnect presenters.

I can be reached at 508-333-7222, if Lydia Pastuszek or you offer more details. The lab is about a 15 minute cab ride from downtown and we suggest travel as a group if possible. You may want to have a cab company's phone number to arrange to return trip when you are done.

Best,

David Wallace

Hi Pam,

I agree with Heather Conover and we have no trouble agreeing on the FCC, energy, and the CMO Committee.

We are working with the Canadian consulate who is bringing those covered by all tech companies for the Tech Connect conference in Boston later this year.

I am wondering if you or someone else at your company would be interested in meeting with any of these companies to learn about their technologies? One company we called ZeroWaste and they produce a company of its equipment solution to eliminate liquids from landfills and through cleaning. Another is a called Cuscuta, and it is a water saving technology.

Please let me know of your interest.

Dear Susan and Lee

I believe that Nancy Seidman mentioned to you that I would be in touch. I am working with a group of Canadian companies that are coming down to Boston sponsored by the Canadian Consulate, by the way. Connected group at the Hyatt, June 13-16. The companies are all in the clean tech space.

One of the companies has a product that "sucks" odors. The equipment measures and monitors odors. It has been installed in many applications. Nancy indicated that odor complaints are handled through the regional DEP offices along with local Boards of Health.

I would like to introduce this company to you or to the appropriate person on your staffs. Would you kindly help me to arrange that meeting?

I hope that you managed to avoid any difficulties with the torrids weather of this week. The damage is so sad to see.

Please let me know at your earliest convenience. I see can do further something.

Many thanks

Hi Chris,

How goes the battle? Are you involved in clean up from the tornado?

I have a question. Who at Grid is involved with managing excess property? I know that once you had responsibility for that - with the big recycling effort that Hagans Mohawk had started

I am working with a group of companies from Canada who are coming down for the TechConnect conference June 13-16. One of the companies is involved with managing, disposing of and keeping track of the recycled benefits of excess inventory/old technology. I would like to introduce them to someone at National Grid.

If you could please let me know who would be the right contact, I would be most appreciative.

THANKS!!

How are things with you? I read the Ukranian Weekly with great dismay about this current group of leadership there.

I am working with a group of Canadian companies that are coming down to Bristol June 13-16 for the TechConnect conference. I am wondering if you would be willing to meet with the principals of a company that has a vertical, no vend turbine that does not interfere with telecomm's transmission.

Would that time frame work for you? We have meeting space at the Hayes Convention Center.

Thanks very much! Let me know please.

Hi Lydia, yes odors fall via air pollution in our regulations but we usually refer complaints to local boards of health first and only get involved when they can not resolve an issue. I don't know how much they talk to equipment folks though, they may try to refer you back to Boston. But let me know what office might work and I'll check around. I have worked w/ folks in the consulate office in Boston on fuels issues and have always enjoyed the interaction. Let me know if this helps you.
